Break it down song lyrics

Photo: My Chemical Romance I tore my heart out. I stitched myself up. While the lyrics may seem too emotional for some, the emo kids of the early 2000s loved it! Emo bands such as Green Day, Blink-182 and Jimmy Eat World appeared in the late 1980s and early 1990s, but the new millennium brought in new bands such as My Chemical Romance, Panic! disco and The Used. The songs have really expressed lyrics, but only a real emo child can complete the lyrics. While many people may not be aware of where emo comes from, it stands for emotion or emotional kicking. And before we get to the music that the kids play on repeat, music and musicians also cause a fashion statement. Emo fashion will often include choppy layered haircuts, dark eyeliner and a variety of clothing options from Hot Themes. The perfect outfit can't be completed without a pair of black chuck taylors to write your favorite lyrics on. Emo kids wrote the lyrics of the band in early 1986, Green Day. Instead of pop with substance, we turned with rum-pum-pum-pums. And, when there is substance, it is cloudy with great ideals packed as art (pop). There's no shade, but there are but a few artists who actually nail the whole thing – and even then their words are either inarticulate or passable as an emo message goes. Fortunately, an industry-created band of the year has an album coming out that is rumored to re-enact the art of pop songwriting. Early reviews of One Direction's Four praised the boys for their maturity. But, what are they growing from? The lyrics are like hallmarks, that's what. To prove that point, we've dug through Hallmark's collection of sentiments and record lists of 1D for bits of prose that would go either way because they've got all that. And, that's a saccharine thing from. Some can be signed, sealed, delivered while others are belted by Mr. Harry Styles & Co. Watch for yourself! These are just, like, the best tests, ever. Ever.
